Seriously Guys, This is NOT Kosher!

Once again, dear children, it's time to consult with everyone's religious leader, Rabbi Jeremy. Rabbi Jeremy has noticed a surge in anti-Semitism recently, and would like to educate the general public about the nature of the Jew. Many people have been given a false impression of our race by a Kazakh named Borat Sagdivyev. Borat spreads a hateful message of anti-Semitism through his "Throw the Jew Down the Well" song, the Running of the Jew, and other insulting practices. First of all, Jews are a land-based people and cannot survive underwater for any extended period of time. Secondly, Borat suggests that Jews run through the street stealing peoples' money, which is a blatant lie. When Jews steal money they are much more covert about it, to avoid being caught. Finally, Borat is under the impression that all Jews have horns coming out of the tops of their heads. This is in fact not true - many Jews have no horns at all, and those who do have a singular horn, and it is in the middle of their face, not on top of their head.

Another insult to the Jewish species is the Nobel Prize for Economics going to a gentile in 2006. This is clearly an act of anti-Semitism, and it is not the only case reported with this award. In fact, there have only been six Jewish winners in the past ten years, and going all the way back to the inception of the award only 38% of the winners have been Jewish. This is an outrage. We are lucky to live in a country as accepting as the United States, where 51% of the Economics recipients have been Jewish. It's a start, but it still shows a strong bias against Jews. How can the Nobel committee not choose the chosen people for this award?

Despite the numerous other insults to the Jews that have occurred, that is all the time we have for today, since tax season is rapidly approaching and Rabbi Jeremy will be in demand. Until next time, I'm Rabbi Jeremy, and you're not.

The Peter Kauffmann Legal Defense Fund Presents:

How to Raise $1,000,000 in Thirty Days

Are you being sued in a frivolous lawsuit? I know I am! If I lose this case, I'll owe the lady who barely scraped the side of her car against mine a million dollars. I went to school; she went away in an ambulance. You may be asking, "Peter, you're but a college student. Where are you going to come up with that kind of money?" Oh, you poor, poor, misguided fool - their case doesn't have a leg to stand on. Unfortunately, it does have a wheelchair made of false medical records assembled by the Allen, Allen, Allen, and About 43 Other Allens Law Firm. But I'm not worried, as even if I lose I still have a few sure fire ways to make a quick buck or hundred thousand.

Telethon - I'll just go ask my good friend Jerry Lewis to host a telethon for me. I'll go on TV and plead my case, and Jerry will tell everybody what a joy and a thrill and all it is to be here. (Postscript: it's super-duper.)

Benefit Concert and/or Gala - You know, one of those ones they're always having for Darfur or Katrina victims or orphaned blind AIDS-ridden headless children. I hope I can find out what flavor Pop-Tarts Bono likes so I can properly stock the green room.

Professional Minion Services/ Timetravel - Greg - Swieter's already offered me a crapload of money to do his bidding when I get older, so... me in the future! Yoo hoo! Send me the money I need...

now. Now. Now? Aww, crap. I'll just assume the flux capacitor is broken for the moment.

Play the Stock Market - All I need is a good, well-timed investment decision. How about plastics? No, too Dustin Hoffmanish. How about this "Ponzi Corporation, International"? That seems like a safe bet.

Those things are all guaranteed to work! I should just kick back and relax now. I suppose that if things get really desperate, I can go take a trip to that Mecca of love, the Candy Mountain Cave. There, I'll be beat over the head with a heavy object (such as the Physics 2305/2306 textbook) and somebody will steal my freakin' kidney and leave me in a bathtub full of ice with a note to call 911. I sure hope they leave me the money. In any case, if all else fails, I can just get in a car wreck and sue somebody else.

DESTRUCTION OF THE KITCHEN WAS THE WORK OF AN ENEMY!

RESIDENT EXPERT PETER KAUFFMANN CONVINCED THE DEVASTATION NOT AN ACCIDENT.

A HARBINGER OF FURTHER VIOLENCE AGAINST FAIR HILLCREST?

This past morning Peaceful members of our Community awoke to a sight few had dared conceive – our once immaculate kitchen, only so recently tended by dutiful chefs serving fine prepared meals, was wrought to ruin. The wreckage was so great that some early onlookers postulated a tornado's handiwork bore responsibility, but such meteorological unlikelihood quickly gave way to the prevailing conclusion that AGENTS OF MAIN CAMPBELL COMMUNITY WERE RESPONSIBLE.

A typical dinner enjoyed by Hillcrest Residents before the attack demolished the kitchen.

Relations between the dorms ebbed and flowed during the course of Nerd Fest '06, but with the recent Holiday season and joint Communities Brunch there were no evident signs of trouble brewing. But clearly their Fanaticism knows no boundaries to its evil desire to inflict misery and desolation. Hillcrest resident Sam Abboud was found rummaging through the dumpster outside the building. Mr. Abboud believes the radical agenda of Main Campbell goes much further: "Stupid Camplonians, they control everything, the media, the government, even the weather." He then tied a discarded twist-tie around his finger and declared it "his precious."

The opinions of the deranged aside, even individuals celebrated for their temperance, lucidity of thought, and judicious reflection were calling for a strong response. "I knew I brought six guns up here for a reason," shouted Dylan Greenwood, shooting two of them into the air. "We can't live in peace while Main Campbell is under the control of ... you know ... their evil dictator!"

The UN (iversity) is expected to condemn the action, but is not likely to specifically mention involvement by Main Campbell. Apparently, their standards of evidence dictate that actual evidence exist before authorizing a military response. Hillcrest, though, is prepared to act unilaterally. "I can't comment on actions which may or may not already be underway," says Hillcrest Director of Covert Operations Collin Calhoun, "but they should be prepared for Hillcrest to firmly assert its sovereign integrity. You can bet first on our list is the recovery of Bill's Chair."

Erin Smithberger shows no sympathy for the evil-doer terrorists. "I knew that they were underhanded, but destroying the kitchen was really low. I was shocked that our 'peers,' as they would have us believe they were, would do something so heinous that would cause so many Hillcrestaceans to starve to death. I also believe they were responsible for the missing recycling bins. They have a youngest-child complex; they always want to make us look bad so they look better."

Welcome Back!

Hey Hillcrestaceans! Welcome back to another semester of Hillpress. There are some changes that you will notice this semester. As many of you remember, at the end of the fall, we had a call for writing sample submissions. We received two: one from Tory Smith and one from Mitch Daniels. Mitch wrote a really great writing sample, and everyone agreed he should be on board. We figured that if we told Tory no, he would throw a hissy fit... so he is on board too. Collin Calhoun, thanks to his previous experience in journalism and proven brutal humor was given an honorary place on the staff.

We are looking forward to giving you some wonderful, first class news. We will not go easy on such people as Dr. Papillon for asserting that Main Campbell is better than we are. We will not let any quirky annoying thing on campus go unpunished. We are here to hold Hillcrest, Honors, and the campus accountable. Thank you for continuing to choose us as your news source... or allowing us to slide this under your door...

If you have any input or opinion on published articles, please feel free to e-mail me letters to the editor (I may even publish them), bshapiro@vt.edu. Thank you all and I hope you enjoy!
